Instructors Needed

If you have attended the CCAMS School in the past and were fortunate enough to sit in on the class sessions, you have heard some really great instructors share their knowledge and help folks better understand their jobs and places in the measurement industry. If you believe you have knowledge and experience that others would benefit from, why not volunteer to teach a class? The CCAMS Board is always looking to keep classes fresh and interesting, and ones that keep up with industry changes. Consider teaching a class - you won't regret it. Send a message to the CCAMS Board at ccams2013@yahoo.com.

Board Activities

This past spring, the Board of Directors expanded by bringing on four new members. Lauren Fox, Justin Parker, Alex Sorokin and John Austin were elected as new board members in March and have already been helping with CCAMS activities, including planning for next year's School.

The Board also lost a few members. Lisa James, who began working with CCAMS in the late 1990s, resigned from the Board last December to enjoy more time in her retirement. As well, Clay Hammond resigned from the Board in March 2024. We wish them both the best! Thank you!

Anne Keller, Managing Director of Midstream Energy Group, speaks to CCAMS 2025 School attendees in February about the future of the oil & gas industry in South Texas.

Plans underway for upcoming CCAMS School in February

It is no easy task planning and organizing the annual CCAMS Measurement School, and this year is no exception. After taking a few months off this summer, the Board recently met to begin the process of setting up the School. With the help of Board members and volunteers, the School is off to a great start.

Once again the annual school will take place at the Omni Corpus Christi Hotel February 17 - 18, 2026. Registration will soon open for attendees and exhibitors, so visit the CCAMS website, ccams.info, for all the latest information.

The School will include approximately 70 courses focused on the measurement industry and led by professionals with many years

Scholarship Spotlight

Occasionally, the Board of CCAMS receives "thank-you" notes from scholarship recipients. We would like to share a couple we recently received.

Jordyn Maddux writes:

"I am extremely grateful to have been selected to receive this from CCAMS for the second year. This money allows me the opportunity to continue my journey at Texas State University and work towards my degree. I am looking forward to this upcoming year as a sophomore and begin classes for my two majors."

Laura Bennett writes:

"Thank you for your continued support in my college education! I have loved every single semester at Texas A&M and am happy to announce I will be getting my Aggie Ring this semester! I wouldn't be here without your support!"

experience. As well, an exhibition area will be set up for vendors.

Word of mouth is priceless to us, so share your experience at past schools with colleagues and co-workers. Growing the School is always a good thing and it helps to exchange knowledge with folks who may have different and new perspectives as the industry changes.

In other news, the Board awarded $55,000 in scholarship funds to 17 new and 17 renewing recipients. Fees collected at the annual Measurement School fund these scholarships.
